To Whom It May Concern,

Scott Keller has been a member of Destiny Christian Church for over a year now. I have been involved with him during the entire period of time. I have counseled him on many occasions as well as helped him understand some of the issues he has been dealing with. My experience with him has been positive and I have observed a great change in his actions and lifestyle.

To this point, he has involved himself in many ways to challenge him and help him deal with his life issues. He has attended a program here at Destiny called Celebrate Recovery which deals with addictions, hurts, bad habits, and self-esteem issues. His changes in attitude and inner self confidence have been truly remarkable. He continues to be involved in this program and has added a sense of accomplishment which also inspires others who have seen the changes occurring in him.

I am confident that he will continue to improve his life and add an example to those he comes in contact with. I have personally gotten to know him well and appreciate his willingness to listen, change accordingly, and keep me posted on a regular basis of how he is doing. Today he is a very different person than the one I met over a year ago.
