FOR DISCUSSION

- 10 [RLH OA
12-32](#) Appeal of Jarred Johnson to a Code Compliance Report at 685 ORANGE AVENUE EAST. (Public hearing held May 16; laid over from July 11)

Legislative Hearing Officer Marcia Moermond reviewed the history of Council actions on the property and clarified that what was before the Council now was whether a code compliance inspection should be required before a registered vacant building could be reoccupied. At Councilmember Bostrom's request she played the video of the property owner's May 16, 2012 public hearing testimony. At that time the property owner stated that everything would be done in 60 days if the City would allow him to pull permits, and Councilmember Bostrom stated that the Council would grant the extension but the property would have to be vacated if the work was not completed in 60 days.

Ms. Moermond said she felt more than adequate opportunity had been given to the property owner to complete the work, and her recommendation was to deny the appeal.

Councilmember Bostrom moved to approve the resolution.

Approving and authorizing the execution of the contingent real estate acquisition agreement with the Port Authority for land needed for a ballpark in downtown Saint Paul, contingent upon conveyance of Midway Stadium, the budget amendment, and bond related matters.

Councilmember Thune moved an amendment stipulating District 17 and community involvement in the planning. Yeas - 7 Nays - 0

Council President Lantry explained a second amendment changing language to indicate that the agreement with the owner of the Rasoir Property had been negotiated. Councilmember Thune moved the amendment. Yeas - 7 Nays - 0

Mike Hahm, Parks and Recreation, gave a staff report on ballpark proposal. He emphasized the need to replace Midway Stadium, the broad support for the project, the benefits of the ballpark to the whole region, and the opportunity to put two currently contaminated sites to their highest and best use. He said the project was based on the premise that the activity created by the ballpark in Lowertown could be much greater than that at the Midway site; he cited the benefits resulting from the renovation of the Xcel Energy Arena from the former Civic Center. He reviewed the material aspects of the resolution.

In response to a question from Councilmember Thune, Mr. Hahm described potential winter uses of the new site.

In response to a question from Councilmember Tolbert, Mr. Hahm said the administration had been working closely with Local 17, Labor, Unite Here, and the St. Paul Saints, and was committed to making a labor peace agreement part of the project.

Todd Hurley, Office of Financial Services (OFS), gave a staff report on the ball park budget.

Councilmember Stark expressed concern about the timing of identification of financing sources. He said he didn't feel much time was allowed for Council members and the public to digest the information, and he asked for a description of the process used to determine the best financing solutions and sources. Mr. Hurley said OFS had been working with department directors and the project manager over a long period of time to piece together the City's portion of the financing.

Councilmember Stark asked Mr. Hahm what a "bare bones" municipal ballpark would cost. Mr. Hahm said the City's exposure would be in the range of $12 to 17 million for a basic facility. Councilmember Stark said one argument he'd heard was that the City was leveraging about $17 million that would have been spent anyway to replace a bare bones stadium, with additional funds and getting a better product. Mr. Hahm said that was correct.

Councilmember Tolbert confirmed with Mr. Hurley that the budget process would start over if the City did not receive money from the State.

Councilmember Thune asked whether the property acquisition would also stop in that case. Mr. Hurley said the City would not be transferring property over to the Port Authority in that case because of the no net loss of parkland requirement, but would shift the focus to a redevelopment project. Councilmember Thune asked how much the City would be spending on the property acquisition if the money from the State didn't come through. Mr. Hurley said the total cost would be about $3 million.

Councilmember Stark said he expected there would be questions during public testimony about whether this was a good deal for the taxpayers and about whether the City was helping to enrich a private entity with taxpayer dollars. Mr. Hurley said the City was getting a $54 million project for the $17 million that would need to be put into the Midway site. He said they didn't plan to use property taxes to pay debt service on any of the bonds, and wouldn't need to repay back the grant from the State of Minnesota. He said that in the plan being discussed, the Saints would operate the facility as a partner and pay the debt service owed the City, and maintain the facility. He said the investment was a means to the end of getting a ballpark in Lowertown with the Saints as the operator and partner, and he didn't see the potential for a lot of profit.

Mr. Hahm said the Saints had been a good partner over the years at Midway Stadium and had invested in the facility and paid rents. He said the new agreement would require that they pay additional rents and take on additional responsibilities. He said he felt the financing for the ballpark and pending would be of benefit to the users of the facilities and those providing support.

Councilmember Thune noted that the City would actually be saving some money because they would not be maintaining Midway field, and that property would eventually generate property tax revenue.

Councilmember Stark said some of the proposed financing was coming from CIB originally earmarked for the St. Paul Greenway Project, and it was important that bike-walk projects continued to receive support.

Councilmember Carter confirmed with Mr. Hahm that HREEO would be engaged in making sure goals and priorities for participation of minority- and women-owned businesses were met.

In opposition:

Tom Goldstein (1399 Sherburne Avenue) expressed concerns about the lack of public process for such a costly project, and suggested that building seven to ten neighborhood parks would be a better asset. He questioned the validity of the economic development argument given the lack of independent studies demonstrating it, and said there was good synergy in Lowertown with or without a ball park. He urged the Council to lay the matter over to allow time for more study and public testimony.

Dan Dobson (801 Goodrich Ave) pointed out what he felt were fallacies in the DEED grant application. He said there were other City needs that were not being met due to lack of finances, and asked that the item be laid over for a reasoned, balanced discussion.

In support:

Tom McCarthy read a letter of support on behalf of Harry Melander, President of the St Paul Building & Construction Trades Council (411 Main Street). The letter addressed job creation and economic development associated with the proposed ball park.

James McLean, St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce (401 N. Robert Street), said he was pleased to speak in support of the financing plan for the regional ball park. He said the publicly-owned facility would be a great economic development opportunity bringing hundreds of thousands of people to downtown St. Paul to spend money at the ball park and surrounding businesses. He said the ball park would be an amenity for St. Paul employers to use to attract top talent, and would result in the cleaning of a brownfield and freeing up of the Midway site for redevelopment.

John Regal, representing Securian Financial Group (400 Robert Street N.) said as the largest employer in downtown St. Paul they were 100% supportive and proud of the project.

Matt Anfang, Building Owners and Managers Association (332 Minnesota Street), said three years before they'd taken a position in support of continuing an effort to find a way to get a ballpark in Lowertown, and they continued to support that and the current proposal.

Mike Zipko, Midway Chamber of Commerce, said as someone who worked in Lowertown he'd seen the impact of businesses coming in, and he felt the Saints were a significant chance to increase what was already there. He said the Midway Chamber strongly supported the proposal and urged the Council to vote on the matter as the City was competing with other entities around the state for the money.

Louis Jambois, St. Paul Port Authority (345 St. Peter Street), said they were proud to be part of the project team and looked forward to opening day in 2014.

Councilmember Thune moved to close the public hearing. Yeas - 7 Nays - 0

Councilmember Thune moved approval. He acknowledged the wish for a more extended process, and said the City wasn't in control of the situation completely because of the state grant. He noted that the idea of a downtown ballpark had been discussed for years and years, and he reiterated the benefits of a project that put both the Gillette and Midway sites to good use.

Councilmember Stark said he supported the project but still felt those kinds of questions had to be asked.

Councilmember Carter said he shared the concerns about the process, but differentiated the process from the project itself. He reviewed the benefits of the proposal.

Council President Lantry said sometimes even a long process wasn't enough, and this item had been on the legislative agenda for many years and the Council passed a resolution every year. She said the financing was relatively straightforward for such a large project, in that capital improvement dollars were being used for a capital improvement project.

Councilmember Bostrom said the only thing that troubled him was that the total product was about 5% of what Minneapolis got for the new football stadium.

Councilmember Thune noted that the Lowertown Master Plan, which had been adopted as part of the City's Comprehensive Plan, had been developed by dozens of community members over the course of 18 months, and included talk about the feasibility of a ball park there.
