Garage roof shingles—old, but functional with no leaks.

Grading and drainage around the garage—prefer to wait until spring. (Grading around the home is corrected.)

Tuck pointing interior—a professional mason came to assess the limestone basement walls and determined that there were no structural issues with the interior. (The exterior tuck pointing has been completed.)

Interior and Exterior painting—prefer to wait until next year. Siding repair and replacement still needed and my painting contractor recommends waiting for best quality paint job due to cold weather.

The interior walls, while not finish coated at this time, are serviceable and clean. Prefer to delay final painting until 2014 as part of decorating phase.
