27 APC 16-2

Public hearing to consider the appeal by Nova Classical Academy of a Planning Commission decision to uphold the Planning Administrator's approval of changes to the Victoria Park Master Plan to allow a 49 ½ ft. high apartment building at 763 Kay Avenue.

Bill Dermody, Planning and Economic Development, gave a staff report. He said the key question was whether the modifications in height and the change from townhomes to apartments were consistent with the Victoria Park Master Plan's intent. He reviewed the Planning Commission's findings in upholding the administrator's decision, and he reviewed the Master Plan history. He said the project still had to go through site plan approval, and the questions before the Council were the height and building type changes. In response to a question from Council President Stark, Mr. Dermody said the changes since the Master Plan was first adopted in 2005 included increase in open space, changes to the layout of the road network, and some changes to building type.

Appellants:

Eric Williams, Executive Director at Nova Classical Academy (1455 Victoria Way), appeared. He said they had always been in favor of developing the neighborhood and understood their existence was due to the first modification of the Master Plan. but current traffic patterns and street design didn't allow for high-density development. He said if the new goal was high density housing, there must be plans in place for increased traffic flow, school zone signage, dedicated crosswalks, and parking restrictions. He said Nova filed the appeal on its own behalf but the interests went hand in hand with making sure the neighborhood stayed viable. He referred to a letter in the packet from the Fort Road Federation. part of neighborhood. He said individual Planning Commissioners had commented at the December 1 meeting that Victoria Park should serve as a warning to the Ford site in terms of building heights being driven by economics, and that there was an 80% change from the Master Plan and those changes were piecemeal. He said there was still time to ensure Victoria Park was developed with its long term interests in mind into a thriving pedestrian-friendly urban village. He asked that the Council vote to reverse the Planning Commission's decision. He said Nova had 1000 students and 1000 on the waiting list, and they believed they would need to build capacity to meet needs of all children as required by new statute for charter schools. He said they would be constrained by the proposed building and driveway, and he hoped an independent traffic study would show that this density and traffic pattern didn't make sense for a school. He said he understood the plan had been changed but he felt in warranted a second look.

The following spoke in support of the appellant:

*John Barb (444 Wheeler Street)
Kimberly Dumitrica (2187 Berkeley Avenue)
Naomi Kritzer (1305 Pinehurst Avenue)
Theresa Nelson (1463 Blair Avenue)*

Applicant -

Joe McElwain, developer manager and architect with Chase real estate, developer and owner of Victoria Park Apartments (740 Victoria Street), reviewed the results of traffic impact study conducted as part of the plan review process. He said the study results stated that all intersections were forecasted to operate acceptably with no significant changes in operation, and no roadway modifications were needed. He referred to a letter sent by Nova to Victoria Park residents and said they would not be adding over 100 cars to the neighborhood, and they would be providing more parking stall than required by code. He noted that the school didn't have any private parking of their own, and could take measures to alleviate some of the existing traffic and safety concerns. He said in regards to the change from townhomes to apartments, the property had been zoned for housing since the original 2005 Master Plan, and the goals were for relatively high density and human scaled buildings. He said at the last zoning hearing they had withdrawn their conditional use permit for 49 feet and were now at a 45-foot tall building because they had set the building further back from Nova. He gave a brief history of the site from the Chase Real Estate perspective and noted the changes made to accommodate Nova. He said they did not find issue with being next to a school built with a minimal setback, and felt the current mix of property types was good for the neighborhood and consistent with the St. Paul Comprehensive Plan. He said they had been good neighbors to the school and had high standards for their property. He displayed some drawings.

Councilmember Noecker moved to close the public hearing. Yeas – 6 Nays – 0

Councilmember Noecker thanked everyone who had taken time to come testify and who had taken time to engage with her on the issue. She said she shared the concerns about pedestrian safety and traffic issues but it was important to think about the question before the Council: the height variance and change from condo to apartments. She said the other concerns expressed would be addressed by the site plan later on, and she felt there were some serious concerns that had been raised. She said the two things she had been considering were the purpose of the Master Plan and whether the proposed changes substantively ran counter to the initial intent of that Plan. She said Master Plans were guidelines but also living documents, and there had been changes in this Master Plan, including a major modification which allowed Nova to exist. She said, as to the impact of the changes, this wasn't about whether the building was built, but whether it was allowed to be higher and whether it could be apartments. She said the height was within the range the Plan called for and only added about 13 units. She said, as to the change to apartments vs. townhomes, the plan calls for mixed residential, and while it was true that most of the land had become apartments, there was still a lot of land to be developed. She said even with the change to apartments and the change in height, the total addition as just 37 units, and with parking be accommodated and the traffic study coming later, she didn't think 37 additional units was enough to constitute a modification that was not in concert with the intent of the Master Plan. She said her motion was going to be to deny the appeal. She said it was important to think about the density we wanted in our City and the vibrancy it brought, ad to keep in mind that those things could be balanced in a safe way with the kind of planning that would happen with the site plan.

Council President Stark said he would support the motion, and noted the criteria being considered was a minor change to the existing plan in that it was less than 10% of the land area of the whole plan. He said it was important in planning these larger areas such as Midway and Ford, that they got these issues right, but he felt the solutions to some of the issues Nova raised could be found within the school and how it operated. He said part of what created a pedestrian friendly place was lots of people. He said it was true more development would bring more cars, but this was always going to be a pretty heavily developed area.

Councilmember Prince said she would support motion because agree that the question before us was met by the decision of the Planning Commission. She said Nova was a great educational asset in St. Paul, and she was pleased to see Chase was making some modifications in terms of adding a courtyard next to the school. She said there was an opportunity, during the site plan review process, for Chase and Nova to work together to accommodate some of the concerns that had been raised, and she was sure City staff could help with that.

Councilmember Bostrom said it appeared that the Master Plan had been changed in about 80% of the projects and it didn't seem to him didn't give a lot of comfort to the folks that came in early. He said it shouldn't be called a Master Plan but just a master suggestion since it could be changed so easily. He said he would support the motion since the Council member in that area was supporting it, but that was his comment.

Council President Stark said it was important to remember that the school was one of those major modifications to the plan, but Councilmember Bostrom's point was well taken. He said the reality with some of these areas was that the market changed dramatically from the original plan in 2005, and sometimes you had to adjust.

32 RES PH 16-69 Modifying Residential Permit Parking Area 18 for the Cleveland Avenue Bicycle Project.

Council President Stark gave a brief overview; he said part of the information applied to Permit Parking Area 17 as well. He said the proposed changes came about as a result of the proposed Cleveland Avenue bike lanes and feedback around the impacts on businesses in the area. He reviewed the changes.

Councilmember Prince said ordinance required that if the City initiated changes to a permit parking zone it needed to go through the District Councils. She asked whether the resolution had gone before the District Council. Council President Stark said the District Council was involved in promoting meetings around the Cleveland Avenue bikeway and the recommendations had been out there for discussion. He said he had hosted a meeting two weeks before with neighbors wanting to talk about the issue. He said in consultation with the City Attorney's Office it was their belief that it met the spirit of that action, which was to get community feedback. Deputy City Attorney Gerald Hendrickson concurred. Councilmember Prince said the ordinance seemed really clear about it.

In opposition:

Dennis Casey (98 N. Cleveland) said he didn't object, but didn't think the Council was going far enough. He expressed concern about students misusing guest parking permits.

William Casey (1882 Selby Avenue) reiterated those concerns, and asked for stronger parking enforcement.

In support:

John Thompson (128 Cleveland Avenue)

Council President Stark moved to close the public hearing. Yeas - 6 Nays - 0

Council President Stark thanked people for coming and testifying. He said it was quite a process trying to juggle all the various needs for parking in the neighborhood. He noted that there were representatives from St. Thomas present and said the permit parking in the area had been established in response to the increased demand for parking due to activities at St. Thomas. He said the third party that often got left out of the equation was the small businesses stuck between the permit parking districts and students taking up almost every available spot that wasn't in a permit parking district. He said he felt that was probably a mistake from the beginning and they were trying to rectify that by allowing customer parking on some blocks. In response to questions raised about the existing permit system, he said the City was underway with a study of the permit parking system overall with the intention of trying to fix some of those problems. He moved to approve the resolution and said he felt it was the best balanced approach they'd been able to come up with to meet the competing needs..

Councilmember Prince said she objected to the process they were using, because Section 164.13 of the permit parking ordinance it was very prescriptive that the traffic engineer should report on the proposed changes to the district councils. She said even if she overcame the fact that several public meetings were held under the auspices of the district council as a basis for getting past the required public hearing required by ordinance, any objections raised going forward could overturn the Council's action. She said, as an attorney, she had represented in a similar situation in which an amendment to a permit parking zone was thrown out because the City didn't follow its own process. She suggested that the item be laid over, or she could just vote no, but the ordinance was very clear.

Council President Stark said they'd had the meeting two weeks before where they'd invited everyone from the districts to participate, and a traffic engineer was there and was an integral part of making this recommendation. He said he'd had conversations with the district councils about whether they wanted to run the process. He said it made sense to them and to him that he host the meeting because he was so deeply involved in the issue and would be present at the Council meeting to help decide the outcome. He said the district council hadn't objected to the process, and if they had, he would agree with Councilmember Prince. He said he felt they'd actually gone above and beyond what a normal process might be.

Councilmember Prince reiterated her concerns, and said based on her experience she didn't feel the Council should be fast and loose with this very prescriptive ordinance. Council President Stark said he felt that was an overstatement.

Councilmember Brendmoen said she understood that the City Attorney's office had been consulted and thought the process qualified.

Councilmember Noecker asked whether it might be helpful to have something in writing for the traffic engineer to the district council on the record. Deputy City Attorney Gerald Hendrickson said it never hurt to have it in writing, but he didn't know that that meant they needed to delay what they were doing. He said he was not involved in the question of the district councils but was involved in questions of the notice provisions. He said the traffic engineer had issued a verbal report and it would not be a bad idea to have it in writing. Councilmember Noecker asked whether the Council could proceed that night with a friendly amendment to request a written report from the traffic engineer confirming their position. Council President Stark said he was sure the traffic engineer would be happy to provide that. Mr. Hendrickson said it wasn't strictly a part of the record but would satisfy the people at the Council table. Council President Stark pointed out that the people present hadn't expressed a problem with the process. Councilmember Prince said the reason she had looked it up was that she had received questions about one of the ones coming up on Cleveland, and she responded that under the ordinance there had to be a public hearing at the district council.

Councilmember Bostrom echoed Councilmember Prince's concerns, and said this came back to an earlier conversation about the Comprehensive Plan - was it a plan or was it a suggestion. He said did this ordinance mean what it said or was it just a suggestion. He said if there was a challenge they should be working within the letter if the law. Council President Stark said to his eyes they went above and beyond the requirement and had the policy makers sit in the community at a meeting facilitating a discussion among the affected folks, which was much more direct access than a district council conversation. Councilmember Noecker said she agreed they went above and beyond, but she wanted to make sure this happened and wasn't challengeable because the letter of the law wasn't met but the spirit of the law was exceeded. She said if they could have it in writing that the traffic engineer and the district council were in support it would alleviate some concerns about later challenges.

Council President Stark said this was similar back story, but different area, with similar proposed changes. Council President Stark moved to continue the public hearing to June 15. He thanked folks who had testified, and said it was similar feedback but some different specific concerns. He said his observation was that going around that block was already the pattern when people couldn't find parking in front of the businesses on Marshall. He noted that they were trying to work with Metro Transit to move the bus stop at Marshall and Cleveland to the north side of the intersection. He thanked Mr. Bergson particularly for coming down and sharing his concerns and for his service to the community. He said his Legislative Aide had been working with Mr Bergson and he guaranteed they'd get a disability parking space in front of Mr. Bergson's house.

Councilmembers use iPads to review the files during the meeting. Using the iPad greatly reduces costs since most agendas, including the documents attached to files, are over 1000 pages when printed.

Web

Meetings are available on the Council's website. Email notification and web feeds (RSS) of newly released Minutes, Agendas and Meetings are available by subscription.

Please visit www.stpaul.gov/council for meeting videos and updated copies of the Agendas, Minutes and supporting documents.
