

Ms. Lantry:

I don't reside in St. Paul but I was born and raised in St. Paul. That said, I don't believe any government authority should take away a persons private property rights any more than they already have. Situations arise where a property owner may find it necessary to rent his property whether he or she wants to or not. The City's intent to limit that right could easily bring about a situation where the party wishing to rent might have a neighbor who has already done so thus taking away the option of that person to rent his property. Please search for an alternative solution.

Thanks
