Peter,

I have priced out the furnaces for Iglehart and would sell them for $500 over cost like on Sunray. The installation for both units would be 95%+ two stage furnaces (44,000 Btu for the lower unit and 60,000 Btu for the upper). The lower unit would have a 1.5 ton AC and the upper a 2 ton (both 16 seer high efficiency).

Lower unit..

Rheem RAPM04 95% gas furnace (vertical 45,000 Btu)
Rheem 1.5 ton 16 seer AC
AC pad and lineset
9 supplies and 4 returns
Direct venting through wall

Equipment cost $3250 (my cost)
Ductwork $200 per opening (material and labor) $2600
Permit $200
Can get a $600 Rheem rebate but would have to pay $300 more

} $6050

Upper unit..

Rheem RAPM06 95% gas furnace (horizontal 60,000 Btu)
Rheem 2.0 ton 16 seer AC
AC pad and lineset
10 supplies and 4 returns
Direct venting through roof

Equipment cost $3350 (my cost)
Ductwork $200 per opening (material and labor) $2800
Can get a $600 Rheem rebate but would have to pay $300 more

} $6150

New gas lines for 2 furnaces and existing clothes dryer $450

} $450

For the plumbing

They are calling for the rain leader to be removed which means the install is probably cheaper to bust open the floor and redo the piping from the exterior wall all the way up instead of trying to save 20'. This is only for the DWV piping (no fixtures included) and Pex water piping rough in.

Plumbing DWV replacement for 2 existing bathrooms, 2 existing kitchens and 1 new bathroom.

piping for 3 toilets, 3 vanity sinks, 2 kitchen sinks, 3 showers or bathtubs, repipe laundry tub, replace main stack from building entry through roof, vent all piping through roof.

All demo of existing piping and opening of walls/ceilings by others for both heating and plumbing

Cost for plumbing $5500.00 + Permit ? Rain Leader remove

Thank you,

Chris Rydrych

Proposal

Peter I think the best and easiest way is to tear every thing out and wire with all new wiring. I will turn off the power and meet with your guys and show them what I need and where sheetrock must come down then they can tear everything out. I will mount to 2 panels in the basement and one on the 2nd floor. The meters will be on the back of the house and I will need to have a disc for the second floor but I should be able to get by without one for the house and 1st floor service. I will mount three separate meters side by side and run pipe for each to on central location for connection to Xcel, this will save on cost of a meter bank around 2,100. I believe we can get the material for the meter and service's for under a $1,000 and labor at 18 hrs @ 50 $ 900.00 → 18hrs

We will need to use tamper proof outlets, arcfault breakers (40 to 60 apiece) and tamper proof GFI outlets. I think it is a good idea to use black or brown outlets and sws to hide ware and dirt.

I don't normally bid out things like this I usually have a set price per outlet, light, ect I think with all the walls open I can ruff these in 20 hours per unit and should be able to final them in 16 the basement and attic about 10 hours and the service 18hrs. 2x20hrs
40hrs

Permits will be around $200- $ 300 per unit, there should be no cost from Xcel. Most of the material we will get at Home Depot and I would say you are looking at around $1500.00- 2000.00 per unit for all material not including light fixtures 10
