I don't think that a bad decision was made but the reason I'm in this situation is because of my financial situation. Why push a homeless person into bankruptcy with fines and cost that they can't afford when the only reason I had to rent my house out was due to the pandemic and the dip that the economy took plus my kids lost their jobs and I couldn't afford to pay my mortgage and take care of my kids and grandchildren. everything is fixed and properly done I can't afford to get contractors to do it. I can pay double the fines I just need somewhere for me and my kids and grandkids to live. The place that I'm currently staying is terrible not only the living conditions the amount of people in this one bedroom apartment is ridiculous. I have a beautiful house that I could be living in that I would be living in if covid would've never happened. Yes I did break some rules to keep my house heated but everything else is fine there's no electrical issues there's nothing else. All I ask is that you take in consideration that Covid 19 happened, my health issues, and money issues due to both things just mentioned before you force a single parent onto the streets and into bankruptcy.
