Subject: RE: Fare Increase Input?

Hi Tom,

Sorry we didn't have anyone at the public hearing and I appreciate you wanting our feedback. Regarding deregulation of rates, it is a bad idea. Rates nationally are regulated and it is for one primary reason and that is to protect the consumer since a metered rate is not necessarily transparent. If rates were deregulated, it would be an anarchy and the City would receive hundreds of calls a week complaining about getting ripped off by a cab driver.

On the minimum fare, the company that wants it increased doesn't even charge the current maximum allowed rate of $2.20 per mile and a $2.50 flag. They currently charge $2.00 per mile with a $2.00 flag. They want to advertise lower rates but make up for it in the first mile or two by stating it is a City mandated minimum. Furthermore, if they simply raise their rates to the new proposed rates, they hit their $8 minimum at the 2 mile mark. I'm sure they will state most of their runs go less than 2 miles which might be accurate. But should those consumers really pay $8 for a 1 mile run? Or worse yet $8 for a 0.5 mile run?

I have attached an Excel spreadsheet that shows the math for the company that I assume is asking for the $8 minimum. I pulled their current rates off of their website. My math doesn't account for the flag increment but in the case of St. Paul Yellow Taxi, it is only 1/20th so it is insignificant in the total cost ($0.10).

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Steve
