- 13 ABZA 13-2 Public hearing to consider the appeal of Hamline Midway Coalition to a decision by the Board of Zoning Appeals (BZA) to approve variances from the sign code requirements in order to allow a projecting business sign for The Love Doctor store.

Yaya Diatta, Department of Safety and Inspections (DSI), gave a staff report on the variance and appeal. He displayed photographs of the existing and proposed signs, and existing projecting signs at neighboring businesses. In response to a question from Councilmember Stark, he said the proposed sign and existing signs at adjacent businesses were at the same level, but the extra foot of projection allowed for more visibility for the proposed sign.

Appellant:

Michael Jon Olson, President of the Hamline-Midway Coalition, said they believed there were flaws in the BZA's reasoning. He said it could be argued that the Snelling Avenue LRT Station added to the visibility of the store rather than detracted, and the LRT Station affected all businesses equally and was not a unique circumstance. He said the stated reason for approving the variance was to allow the business to compete in an already visually cluttered area, but the intent of the code was to reduce visual clutter over time. He said the Hamline Midway Coalition wanted to go on the record as saying they did not in any way object to the nature of the business, about which there had been no complaints.

Jeanne Weigum (1647 Laurel Avenue) said she supported the community council's effort to move forward not backward.

In opposition:

Troy DeCorsey, owner of the Love Doctor, said the business had been changed and cleaned up during his ownership and they were not an Adult Superstore (as stated on an existing sign). He said when the rail went up in front of the store and they lost their parking, they lost a lot of business, and the new sign was for improved visibility. He said he didn't think the LRT station would generate business, and the proposed sign would make the business more visible to people driving by. He said the existing Adult Superstore sign would come down and the proposed sign was a lot smaller. He said he felt the opposition was due to the nature of the business, but they were a good business, and had never had a complaint. He said he had done everything he was supposed to do, the sign was approved by zoning, and the arguments from the Hamline-Midway Coalition had come in after the time for arguments had passed.

Councilmember Stark moved to close the public hearing. Yeas - 6 Nays - 0

Councilmember Stark said the business had been a positive addition to the neighborhood and there'd never been a problem, and the issue was the sign code and whether the requested variance was reasonable and made sense. He echoed the concern raised by the appellant about setting the precedent of granting variances on the basis of conditions related to proximity to an LRT station, since LRT stations along University Avenue were now the normal condition. He said it could be argued that the variance would result in a net decrease in sign clutter, but the larger issue was the current code and the precedent the variance would set. He moved to grant the appeal on the basis that the original staff recommendation was correct in that the conditions for making a variance reasonable had not been met.
