Hi, Anastasia! Good to hear from you.

The first thing I wanted to make sure you knew is that we did not report anything to the City, and in all honesty, we are not sure who did.

Secondly, most of the time, we do not mind if the car overhangs onto our property. However, since we do not have city street passes, when we have people over for dinner, it is frustrating if we are unable to use the spot behind our garage. We've never said anything because, to your point, as neighbors, we didn't want to cause any hard feelings, but this feels like an opportunity to remedy that situation. If we could work it out so that we could drop you a quick email when we need to use the space for our visitors (which might occasionally be last minute), we wouldn't have any objection if one of your cars overhangs our property line.

I'm copying my personal email address so we can use that going forward, and am also copying Paul's personal email address in case he needs to get in touch with you as well.

Thanks,

Krista

Subject: Question about alley

Hi Krista:

I was hoping that I would catch you at the house and speak in person, but due to time constraints I am sending an email.

Someone has been calling the city and complaining about the cars that we park in the back of our house. I have spoken with a legislative hearing officer and what I gather as her main concern is that the second car overhangs the property line into your space. She asked that we get your permission to overhang onto your property.

Could you write us a note allowing us to overhang onto your property when we park the second car back there? I never put a lot of thought into the parking situation as it had always been like that- but I apologize for all of the time we have been overhanging onto your space without asking. Even if you can't write the note, please let me know- we're still neighbors and I don't want any hard feelings.

I also apologize for asking in an email, I really wanted to ask in person- but I have to meet with the legislative hearing office tomorrow.

Thank you.
