They are pictured in the McCarrons room in the water treatment plant. The tour covered the plant, the garage, the dewatering building, the warehouse, meter shop and sludge field. The tour took place on August 3.

Financial services excels at annual financial report

Every year, the financial services section of the business division works to put out the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report, or CAFR.

This 68-page, detailed document covers all aspects of our finances. It takes months of hard work by the accounting staff. It further requires staff to work closely with state auditors who review and critique the information found in the financial report.

The state found that the financial report was filed in a timely manner and the financial statements are fairly represented and conform with applicable accounting standards. According to the auditors from the state accounting office, the finance section got high marks for “exhibiting Ever wondered what other divisions in the water utility do? How we get our water to our customers? Or where the water comes from in the first place?

Well, here’s your chance to gain a better understanding about the water utility. This fall, there are a couple of systems tours you can go on in September and October.

The first systems tour was held on August 3 and covered much of McCarrons center, including the plant, the warehouse, the meter shop, the garage, the dewatering building and the sludge fields across the street.

The next systems tour in September will take you out into the field and show you the underground tunnels where some of our mains lay, the Highland water tower, mains and service crews as well as temp crews and restoration crews. It will also cover water quality. The tour will be held on Tuesday, September 13, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Brad Eilts will lead the tour.

The October tour covers our supply system, starting at the Mississippi River and the pumps at Fridley station. It will follow the water to Charley, Pleasant, Sucker, and Vadnais lakes. You will get to see ongoing zebra mussel maintenance and learn about man-made and natural treatment processes. You will also learn about our relationships with our watersheds.

This tour will be led by Jim Bode. It will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 4.

Both tours will meet in the cafeteria 10 minutes prior to start of the tour. You need to wear closed-toe shoes on the tour while any safety gear will be provided for you.

You will need to get permission from your supervisor before attending. The tours are limited to 10 employees who have more than one year of service at the utility.

true professionalism and delivering timely, accurate financial information.”

Preparing the report is dependent on the work of other SPRWS employees providing timely and accurate information such as time sheets, accounts payable invoices, meter reading, billing information, reporting and controlling costs.

“These results promote the organization,” said Steve Gleason, business division manager. “They instill confidence
