I would like to ask for forgiveness... I bought the house toward the end of December 2019.... I didn't move in until the middle of January of some cleaning need to be done. One day I received a notice and I called the inspector, his name is Dan.... I asked him and he said for me to clean the side walk to the best that I can and salt it and he will cancel the work order. Took me all evening to midnight to clear the ice and salt it. I got pictures of what I did....few weeks later some city workers came to clean the sidewalk and I told them what has been done but they said they have a work order so they just finished the work order. I took some pictures of the work the city workers done... just a little better than what I previously already completed. Will the city please forgive me and not charge for this.... again it was the first and I just moved to the area. I can assure that it will not happen again. Please let me know.

Thank you,
