57 RES PH 19-36

Ratifying the assessment for the 2018 Street Maintenance Service Program-Sealcoating Street and/or Alley. (File No. 185600, Assessment No. 185600)

Public Works Director Kathy Lantry gave a staff report on items 57 to 72. She said the items had to do with sewer work, sealcoating, and the mill and overlay program for 2018. The sewer work was done at the request of the property owners in conjunction with street construction projects. The sealcoating and mill and overlay assessments were in their second year of the program in its current configuration. She reviewed the sealcoating and mill and overlay processes and funding. Each year, the City sealcoats 1/8 of the city; sealcoating includes pothole patching, some skin patching, and application of liquid asphalt and granite chips. The process is done on an 8-year cycle, and the 2018 rates were $4.71 per front-foot on a street footage and $3.50 in alleys. She said for corner residential properties the footage was calculated by taking the actual footage being sealcoated, divided by 2, with the subsidy paid for by the General Fund. The mill and overlay program, used on arterial streets, involved milling off the top 2 to 3 inches, and re-applying new asphalt. The cost is dependent on factors such as the width of the road, the depth of the overlay, the number of reconstructed corners, the length of the stretch, and the traffic control needed. Properties are charged at 50% and the City's General Fund picks up the other 50%.

In response to a question from Councilmember Tolbert, she said because of the timing of the projects the mill and overlays are generally done in September, and it's a lot of work to collect costs and get the billing out and give Real Estate enough time to put them on the 2020 assessment roll. She said the work had been completed and the amounts charged were per the current policy.

Councilmember Prince asked whether estimates were provided when the letters were sent out. Ms. Lantry said probably not, especially with mill and overlay, because the rates are so variable and based on actual costs.

Councilmember Thao asked what technologies were being used to reduce costs for property owners. Ms. Lantry said, especially with sealcoating, they'd been disciplined about making sure it was a maintenance program done every 8 years, which was a best practice. She said the granite chip being used now provided a better seal to prevent cracks.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Ms. Lantry to describe payment options available. Ms. Lantry said she might have to defer the Real Estate Division, but generally the bills could be paid over time.

Councilmember Tolbert noted that Ms. Lantry and other staff were present to answer questions.

In opposition:

Christina Anderson Taghioff (859 Osceola Avenue) said she and her husband had organized with other property owners affected by the mill and overlay projects, and she had opposition letters from 59 people.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Ms. Anderson Taghioff what project she was in opposition to. She said hers was the Victoria project, but given the work she and her husband had done to form a coalition, she felt it was most useful for her to speak on this item.

Ms. Anderson Taghioff said mill and overlay costs for property owners were as much as $58 per linear square (sic) footage. She said the City had not followed rules necessary before demanding payment from citizens, and for converting the charges to a lien on their properties by way of a tax assessment. She said there was no notice or hearing prior to the improvements being done, and property owners did not have the opportunity to weigh in on whether the improvements were necessary or wanted. She said prior to mid -2017 the City held a notice and hearing about an improvement before it happened, but that was no longer being done, which was contrary to the City Charter, chapter 1301.1., and due process under Minnesota law.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Ms. Anderson Taghioff to conclude her comments as she was over the time allotted.

Ms. Anderson Taghioff said the notice received was an invoice which didn't provide information about contesting the charges or the opportunity to be heard on the matter.

Councilmember Tolbert noted that the Council had received the materials submitted by Ms. Anderson Taghioff and her husband.

Craig Trost (2542 Nokomis) showed a piece of sealcoating that had chipped all over the boulevard. He said he lived on the corner and was being charged for both Nokomis and McKnight. He said when they did the sewer separation they were allowed to pick one or the other for being charged. He said he felt rates for the alley should be half of those for the street given the relative width. He echoed the concerns about lack of notice, and said he also got a street assessment in the fall. He asked why the City didn't also budget that in, or maybe delay it a year.

Simon Taghioff (859 Osceola Avenue) said he was speaking on behalf of themselves and others they had spoken to but who were not able to be present - the elderly, infirm and single working families. He said they felt this was fundamentally and manifestly unfair, and the problem with charging everyone individually for street maintenance was that street maintenance did not primarily benefit the people who lived on that one street. He said street maintenance was a public good, and publicly funded in almost every other jurisdiction. He said when talking about street maintenance costs theoretically, the costs evened out, but mill and overlay was vastly more expensive than sealcoating. He said the extra expense was attributable to the extra traffic on the road from the community as a whole, but being paid for by the handful of property owners along the street. He said the problem was particularly bad for corner properties. He said the people who lived along mill and overlay streets did not receive 50% of the benefit and were not responsible for 50% of the traffic, and should not bear 50% of the cost. He read from a letter they had collected from other residents.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Mr. Taghioff to wrap up his testimony because his time was up. Robert Batta (860 Western Ave North) said Mr. Taghioff could have his time. Councilmember Tolbert said Mr. Taghioff could finish. Mr. Taghioff shared statements from residents for whom the cost was a hardship. He said the obvious solution was to handle the billing for mill and overlay streets like any other residential street, and provide notices that complied with State Law and the City Charter.

Duane Bauer (1607 Suburban Avenue) said the sealcoating contractors did a poor job, they severed the telephone line to his home, the sealcoating was sub-par, and they destroyed his gardens. He said he was asking for relief from the "heinous" bill, because, combined with what he would be paying out of pocket to correct the contractor's mistakes, would put him in dire straits.

Chris Diekman (1791 Stillwater Avenue) showed photos of the incomplete sealcoating job on his street and alley.

Michael Bauer (725 Stryker Ave) said his lot was 50 feet wide, but the calculation on his statement was for 102 feet at $57.50/foot. Councilmember Tolbert referred Mr. Bauer to Real Estate staff members present.

Christine Meyers (1193 Forest Street) said she felt it was unfair to be assessed without knowing she could protest. She said they didn't do the mill and overlay correctly and she ended up with an area of puddling that stayed there for months and created safety issues for bikers. She said she wanted to make sure that the problem was corrected without an additional charge. She said she was a senior with a part-time job, and a son who was a vulnerable adult living with her. Councilmember Tolbert referred Ms. Meyers to Public Works Director Lantry. Lantry.

John Pitera (170 Victoria Street S.) said he wanted to dovetail on what his neighbors Christina and Simon had already said. He said he was charged $32/foot, and Victoria was a major thoroughfare and heavily used by the City's maintenance vehicles. He said they didn't get 50% of the benefit and shouldn't have 50% of the cost.

Scott Kramer (746 Stryker Avenue) said the assessment was fundamentally unfair and unethical, and would be passed along to the renters on the street. He said there were already cracks all over the new mill and overlay. He said the City could and should do something about this.

Walter M. Urrutia Ochoa (2236 5th Street E.) said he was present to pay the bill. Councilmember Tolbert referred him to Real Estate staff present.

Caprice Glaser (761 Stryker) read a letter: She said in 2017 she paid $610 for street maintenance which covered everything, and she was now being charged $8337.50 for just the mill and overlay, as well as $224.45 for lighting and sweeping. She said she was told that residents along state streets such as Smith and Robert didn't have to pay for maintenance. She said she believed everyone who lived in St. Paul should pay for streets. She said the work done was poor quality and was already cracked. She said the stress and anxiety she had experienced because of the size and surprise of this $8337.50 bill, verged on being abusive and was undeserved.

Michael Brennan (112 Victoria Street) said his taxes had almost quadrupled in the 12 years he'd lived in his home, and he was being charged $32/foot for a total assessment of $4984. He said state law stipulated that an assessment must be less than the benefit provided to the property. He echoed his neighbor's observation that City vehicles caused extreme wear and tear on the street, and said for them to share the expense was an unfair adjustment. He said his property had decreased in value because of the increased speeds and traffic on his block. He observed that many of the mill and overlay streets were close to the depots housing large City vehicles and machinery. He said the cost should be coming out of the general fund.

Robert Bloomer (854 Lincoln Avenue) said this was the first street maintenance of any consequence that he could remember in almost 40 years. He repeated his neighbors' concern about increased traffic on Victoria. He asked why properties on Lexington weren't charged for their overlay.

Cheryl Durant (107 Victoria Street S.) said she felt the taxes were excessive and felt she was being taxed out of her home. She said she requested replacement of her lead sewer line and was charged $4100 for that, and, along with her property taxes, the mill and overlay was putting it over the top. She said Victoria was a pretty busy street and the City should pay for more than 50%.

Kim Zack (743 Stryker Avenue) said she wanted to express the "shock and awe" they felt when they opened the $6500 bill they received for the mill and overlay. She said as a young family and first-time home owners, adding that bill to their expenses was significant. She reiterated the concerns about the shoddy workmanship, and said they had been without water for several days without notice more than once when they had a newborn. She said construction vehicles blocked their driveway.

Sherri Mortensen Brown (10 Victoria Street S.) said she would concur with those who had spoken before her regarding the exorbitant amount and the unfairness given the amount of traffic on Victoria. She said she and her neighbors were not assessed uniformly. She said she went to the assessment office to question her bill and was told "blame the churches." She said the churches weren't assessed anymore because it was unconstitutional, and she felt she was picking up their costs along with others using the very busy street. She said state law prohibited the City from assessing a property owner without a special benefit, and she did not have that. She asked that the cost be spread among all taxpayers as a public good.

Andre Moody (800 Stryker Avenue) said he didn't think it was fair. He said they received a bill for $7130, and didn't receive a special benefit. He said it was excessive, not fair, a $7000 bill with no advance notice, and everyone used the street.

Councilmember Thao moved to close the public hearing. Yeas - 5 Nays - 0

Councilmember Thao asked Director Lantry how the City audited the work, and who determined whether it was completed correctly. Ms. Lantry said the majority of mill and overlay was done by City forces; she said she and other staff had taken notes about the testimony and would be taking a look at the issues.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Director Lantry to talk about the life cycle of streets, why mill and overlay and sealcoating were done, and the change to the process over the last few years. Ms. Lantry said they had started to be disciplined in how street reconstruction was done, and had changed some things to lower costs to property owners. She said the most expensive and extensive repair was street reconstruction, which was assessed using street reconstruction bonds and based on a percentage using the special benefit test. She said, ideally, streets would receive a sealcoat every eight years after being reconstructed, and then receive another mill and overlay after three sealcoat cycles. She said they were trying to extend the life of the street because it was so expensive to reconstruct. She said the amount of money for street reconstruction had not been raised in a number of years; when the program began in 1995 they did four or five large residential street projects per year, and today they did one residential and one arterial per year. She said they tried to keep up with sealcoating on residential streets but didn't do sealcoating on arterials because they had so much traffic it was ineffective. Mill and overlay was used to extend the life of the road until reconstruction was done.

Councilmember Tolbert asked Director Lantry about the fee changes over last two years in response to the Supreme Court ruling. Ms. Lantry said in August 2016 the Supreme Court ruled that the Right of Way (ROW) assessment program was unconstitutional because it didn't meet the special benefit test, and the ROW included basically everything. She said some things were transferred to the City's general fund; sweeping and lighting were allowed by state law to be charged to homeowners, as well as a portion or sealcoating and mill and overlay.

Councilmember Prince said she was concerned about the wide range of prices between the mill and overlay projects; she asked what the variable was. Ms. Lantry said some projects had additional costs for ADA requirements; additional concrete work was the big difference.

Councilmember Thao said one gentleman was charged for both sides of his corner property. Ms. Lantry said Real Estate staff was present to answer his questions. She said mill and overlay didn't have a corner adjustment because they only did one side, and for sealcoating they took the total front-footage divided by two.

Councilmember Thao noted the testimony from the person whose water had been shut off; he asked about the communication strategy, and who residents could contact about issues. Ms. Lantry said the water department was usually pretty good about notifying residents about water shut-offs. She said she wasn't sure of the exact circumstances but could ask Director Schneider to get back to Councilmember Thao.

Councilmember Thao said he guessed most people would be happy to pay the assessment but wanted quality work; he asked Director Lantry to explain the procedure for making sure people were getting what they paid for. Ms. Lantry said they expected to give good quality work, and anyone could contact them. She said she had sent a supervisor out that day to check something. She said anyone was free to call street maintenance at 266-9700.

Councilmember Prince said she had seen one where she felt the work was not sufficient. She asked whether it would be better to lay that item over or let it proceed and check it after the fact. Ms. Lantry said whatever best suited Councilmember Prince's needs was fine.

Councilmember Prince said she would like to lay over item 57 for one week.

Amending sections of the Legislative Code pertaining to the Ford Districts (Leg. Code §§ 66.912 - F1 Residential District, 66.917 - F6 Gateway District, 66.921 - District Use Table, 66.931 District Dimensional Standards Table, 66.942 - District Vehicle Parking Standards, 66.943 - District Bicycle Parking Standards), and amending the City's Zoning Map (Leg. Code § 60.303) to adjust zoning district boundaries to follow realigned streets.

Menaka Mohan, Planning and Economic Development, gave a staff report on the proposed amendments to the Ford Site Master Plan. She reviewed the process, compared the original plan to the amendments, summarized the public comments, which were overwhelmingly supportive of the Ryan amendments but included concerns about parking, single-family homes and a decrease in commercial development. She said the Planning Commission initially recommended approval of 68% of Ryan's amendments, and, after revisions and consideration of public testimony, approved 89% of the amendments. She reviewed each of the proposed amendments, including zoning changes, changes to building standards, parking requirement adjustments, roadway adjustments, stormwater requirement adjustments, park and open space adjustments. She noted the Planning Commission's responses to Ryan's requests, and reviewed staff-initiated changes. She summarized that the amendments before the Council represented months of work by staff, Ryan Companies, the Planning Commission, and the community, to consider how the proposed amendments compared to the key development principles of the plan. She said the amendments still provided a mix of uses and met the intent of the Master Plan. She said Ryan was proposing a mix of housing, with around 3800 units, which was close to the maximum of 4000, and was not proposing any changes to the 20% affordable housing requirements. She said the amendments showed a commitment to the central stormwater feature, and provided for high-quality bike and pedestrian routes and preserved the option for high-quality transit on Cretin Avenue. She said Ryan had not proposed a reduction of parkland on the site. She said it was always expected there would be changes to the plan when a master developer was selected.

In opposition:

Rob Wales (1727 Race Street), Sustain Ward 3, said they believed there were specific additions to the amendments that jeopardized the vision of the Ford Site Plan, and believed there were reasonable modifications that could be made to the changes. He referred to an email sent which detailed the changes, and said including those changes would make a drastic difference equity on the site. He said they the proposed single-family housing, reduction in heights, and removal of minimums on commercial space would create a wealth zone on the west side and isolate that from the rest of the site. He said they also believed increasing the parking on the site would encourage driving to the site, and removing Saunders on the eastern access would create a barrier to pedestrian, cycling, and emergency vehicles.

Margaret Cherne-Hendrick, Fresh Energy, said the Ford Site was an opportunity to model sustainability and forward-thinking climate resiliency, and she urged the Council to take advantage of the opportunity and be bold in their decision-making. She said doubling the investment in parking infrastructure for single-occupancy vehicles ran the risk of increasing traffic congestion and tail-pipe emissions across the site. She urged the Council to advance a truly bikable and walkable community that proposed electrified car-sharing and mass transit.

Sean Bennett (1990 Marshall Avenue) said the proposed amendments didn't seem to live out the visions of the 2040 plan.

James Phillips (915 Tuscarora Avenue) said the space along the river was too small for single-family housing, and the higher the density, the better, and the more people that could enjoy the view of the river.

Elizabeth Wefel (444 Warwick Street) said when we have 10,000 homeless people in the Twin Cities, downgrading housing along the Mississippi River Boulevard was immoral, and the City needed to step away from a plan that created a wealth zone.

Bill Lindeke (148 George Street), Planning Commission member, referred to his written comments and said the Planning Commission put a lot of work into consideration of these amendments, and he encouraged the Council to respect that work, and go with the Planning Commission recommendations.

Tyler Blackman (1034 Cleveland Avenue S.) said he was disappointed in the parking and retail changes. He said he was also present on behalf of the Human Rights and Equal Economic Opportunity (HREEO) Commission, which was very concerned about the amendments with the inclusion of single-family housing along Mississippi River Boulevard, and the economic and racial segregation that would cause. He referred to the letter from the HREEO Commission.

Diana Tastad-Damer (580 Brimhall Street) said she and her wife chose St. Paul over the suburbs because of the walkability, and her concern with the amendments was single-family housing along the western edge. She said the City was at a point where they could make bold aggressive moves to help working families, and creating a wealth bubble did not help working families and all St. Paul residents.

Mike Lindsey (1810 Ford Parkway) said St. Paul was changing in ways that meant citizens had to work on their challenges and come up with creative, future-focused solutions. He said the amendments proposed by Ryan pointed towards the past rather than future. He cited data supporting the need for more multi-family housing, and he asked the Council to be cognizant of that need.

Sam Wils (946 Cleveland Avenue) said the City originally created a plan with high-value uses for the entire site. He said the new plan had more parking, less commercial and retail space, and less mixed use, which would mean less tax revenue to the city. He said the reduction in jobs and businesses would make building high-value transit more difficult, and made the redirection of all south- and east-bound traffic to Montreal Avenue at Cleveland especially disappointing. He said Ryan's proposal would be acceptable in the suburbs, but this was a high-value site and it was unacceptable to have density this low.

Amanda Willis (1727 Race Street) urged the Council to vote "no" on the amendments, and said now was the time to get this right. She said creating a wealth zone on the western side, limiting access to the eastern side, and pushing for more parking were not equitable.

Luke Hanson (1880 Grand Avenue) asked that the Council consider equity in all of the decisions, and said this was an opportunity to make sure the City worked for everyone.

Tom Basgen (659 Wilder Street) said two years before they had spent the better part of a year in Ward 3 shouting at each other to get a master plan that was a statement of shared values, and it seemed wild to him that in the last couple of months they'd rolled right over for a millionaire district and double the parking.

In support:

Tony Barranco, Senior Vice President of Development for Ryan Companies, said they re-engaged with stakeholders and considered the realities of what the market could support. He said the Plan was always intended to be a road-map, and they had embraced it in the areas of open space, affordable housing, and sustainability. He said they were proud that after months of work with staff, there was just one item on which they were disconnected with staff on one item - the ratio of parking within the district. He said the items in the resolution were those they needed to have to make the project successful, but that didn't mean they were going to stop listening. He said they would ultimately be judged on the success of the development and not on the Plan, and they needed to move forward.

Frank Jossi (1810 Hartford Avenue), Highland District Council, said they had heard over and over again that including single-family homes made sense to many residents. He said the T3 and the reduction in height still allowed for townhomes, and the neighborhood desperately needed life-cycle housing. He said Ryan had been communicative and had helped many in the neighborhood to embrace the plan, and he felt the amendments were reasonable.

B Kyle, St. Paul Area Chamber (150 Robert Street N., #150) spoke in support of Ryan's plans.

Paul Williams (1706 Hillcrest Avenue), Project for Pride in Living (PPL), spoke about the bold affordable housing plan.

Scott Andresen (1737 Bayard Avenue S.), Board of Directors of Highland Little League, spoke about the importance of preserving the Highland Little League Ball park as part of maintaining a neighborhood feel. He said Ryan had listened to them and committed to preserving two of the fields and a public park available for anyone to use. He said the Council had a unique opportunity to have a local developer.

Kevin Gallatin (1822 Highland Parkway) said he'd been involved in community engagement on this issue since 2014, and echoed the previous points made about the desire for purchasable property on the site. He said ultimately it was important that they were getting 95% of the maximum housing on the site, which was needed. He highlighted the outstanding partnership with Ryan, and said the important equity and transit goals were being met.

Linda Hoaglund (1982 Worcester Avenue) said she initially felt it would be best for the Ford site to become a commercial site because of the contamination, but since the site had been cleaned she hoped the plan as amended by Ryan would go forward.

Jim Ginther (1019 Colby) said he was in favor of all of the Ryan amendments.

Jim Winterer (1032 Bowdoin Street) spoke about the importance of integrating the Ford site with the surrounding community.

Councilmember Thao moved to close the public hearing. Yeas - 5 Nays - 0

Councilmember Thao thanked everyone for their testimony, especially those who came to share their concerns. He said he didn't disagree with the concerns, but the Council was in the unique position of being able to listen to both sides. He said Ryan Companies had done a good job with two projects in Ward 1, and he trusted they were in this for the long hall and would honor their commitments. He said the city had a housing shortage and a need for tax revenue, and a need for this project to get started. He said he felt this was the right compromise and hoped Ryan would continue to work to address the concerns. He said he would will vote in favor.

Councilmember Jalali Nelson thanked everyone no matter which side they came to share. She said the lengthy discussion (earlier in the public hearing) about paying for road maintenance illuminated the challenges of a community organized around cars as the main form of transportation and funding the needs of a growing and changing community. She said she voted against the amendments because she didn't feel it was accurate to describe the inclusion of additional housing along the river as single family homes, but rather they would be mansions or some of the most high-wealth single-family homes. She said what the Council did have before them vote on was in the shape it was because of advocates like Sustain Ward 3 and younger residents who hoped to be able to make a life there. She said they were also the community.

Councilmember Prince said she had voted against the Ford Master Plan in 2017 because the community was so intensely divided. She said she was grateful to the Ryan Companies for the community engagement work in getting broad support from the community that was so divided. She said she appreciated the passion, and noted Mr. Basgen's statement that the original plan was a statement of our shared values. She said she didn't feel the original plan was necessarily a statement of shared values, and what Ryan did in their community engagement was to create an atmosphere of being able to talk about the future of the site that allowed opponents to believe in it. She reminded those present that PED staff discouraged the Council from going down to 30% AMI because they believed saddling a developer with that was never going to fly. She said the Council voted for that bold amendment from Councilmember Thao, and Ryan came as a local developer and said they would meet that goal and not argue about it. She said it was incredible for a market-rate developer to build 30% AMI affordable housing in the strongest real estate market in the city, west of Snelling. She said this was well within the density goals of the Master Plan, and to suggest that it was anything other than a statement of shared values was a mistake.

Councilmember Busuri said he wanted to echo what Councilmember Prince had said. He said Ryan had provided a record of community input, and had incorporated much of the input into their plan. He said they were very close to meeting the sustainability and density goals. He thanked Ryan for their bold action and for including organizations like PPL to increase equity and the value of the neighborhood.

Councilmember Tolbert thanked everyone for their testimony; he said the vote would take place the following week. He reviewed the process starting with the rezoning and development of the Master Plan two years before, and said he had intentionally referred to that plan as a framework and vision. He said Ryan had suggested a fair number of amendments; staff, the Planning Commission, and Council pushed back on some, and the remaining changes were reasonable and made sense. He said Ryan delivered on the plan and the vision in the big picture sense, and he appreciated the collaboration Ryan had with staff, the Council, and with the neighborhood. He said the goal was to successfully redevelop the site into the vision set out two years ago after a decade of work, and he believed Ryan would deliver on that vision.

Councilmember Thao said it was important that the Council pass this to set a precedent for market-rate developers meeting affordable housing goals.
