Community Engagement

Who do you hear from the loudest?

Who don't you hear from?

Community Engagement

Deep community engagement should be inconvenient for us; convenient for the community.

Pop-up events helped us hear from non-library users.

Bayou

Bayou also creates murals and digital illustrations, design digital and print materials, and works as a teaching artist. His intention is to use his talents in art, design, and idea connecting to generate and support community-driven creative works that center healing, empowerment, liberation, collaboration.

Rebekah Crisanta Ybarra

Rebekah Crisanta de Ybarra is an Indigenous-Salvadoran-Norwegian-American interdisciplinary contemporary artist, musician, and culture bearer whose work is rooted in Indigenous Futurisms. Her interdisciplinary social practice (visual art, music, theatre, dance, literature, puppetry & public art) often speaks about shared and erased ancient histories.

Xee Reiter

Xee Reiter is a self-taught artist specializing in watercolor, pen and ink illustrations. As a first generation Hmong American, you can largely find cultural influences in her works. Her artistic exploration includes but is not limited to portraiture, children's book illustrations, art journaling, mural art, typography and calligraphy works.
